

Pre-Hispanic MEXICO

May Semester - LAMS 295

Explore the cultures of ancient Mexico by learning about the geography, cultures, architecture, technology, art, political structures, languages and religions of these great civilizations of the Americas. This interdisciplinary course provides students with an opportunity to study some of the greatest civilizations in the world which continue in the heritage of contemporary Amerindian peoples. An optional 2-week field study will be held in June, 2008.

For more information contact:

The Center for Latin American & Caribbean Studies: 860-486-4964

Dr. T. Gabany-Guerrero

trg02004@uconn.edu or latinamerica@uconn.edu